

Biography: Professor Daryl Jones

Daryl graduated from the University of Melbourne in 1996 and is an Intensive Care Specialist at Austin Health.

Daryl is also an Associate Professor at Monash University, and adjunct Professor at the University of Melbourne and an advisor to the Australian Commission on Safety and Quality in healthcare

He has completed a doctor of medicine in aspects of the Rapid Response Team (RRT) and has also completed a PhD on the RRT that assessed the characteristics and outcomes of patient who are reviewed by the RRT, and details of resource utilization of the MET in ICU-equipped hospitals throughout Australia.

Daryl is the medical director of critical care outreach at the Austin Hospital and is the past president of the international society for Rapid Response Systems.

