

“A/Professor Graeme MacLaren is an adult and paediatric Intensive Care Physician and Director of the Cardiothoracic Intensive Care Unit at the National University Hospital, Singapore. He graduated from the University of Melbourne and trained in critical care medicine before undertaking additional post-fellowship training in perioperative echocardiography and Infectious Diseases. He has a Masters Degree in Infectious Diseases from the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine He serves on the boards of six journals in the fields of critical care medicine and infectious diseases and is an Associate Editor for five of them. He is a member of the Board of Directors of the Extracorporeal Life Support Organization (ELSO) and was the inaugural Chair of its Asia-Pacific Chapter. His principal professional interests are extracorporeal membrane oxygenation, and infection and critical illness.”